

In Riaño this is the first time the detail of the phreatic passages running over the downstream main streamway have been sketched and published. We resurveyed these as only centreline data existed in the archives. We also surveyed a loop off Pendant Chamber which tied up to the main upper series passage so that removed two open 'leads' from the old survey. Also for the first time all the known named features in the upper series are now named on the survey (thanks to Lank for providing the details). Now we have names I can make an attempt at writing a description of the upper series for the website.

In Uzueka entrance series all the resurvey work for 2011 is drawn up. This was already published earlier in the year as a bitmap survey so there is nothing new since then. But it is included on the same survey sheet as Riaño for the first time as a complete, up to date PDF. So you can zoom in as far as you like without it pixelating. No new exploration was done in the entrance series of Uzueka in the summer, so the mysteries of Sima Baz still await solving in 2012.

Footleg
9/12/2011

(taken from a posting on the Matienzo Google Group)